A Narrow Escape

SUSAN.—Mr. Robert Miller and three other gentlemen from New Port News, while trying to find their way in the mouth of Horn Harbor, last Saturday, in a gasoline launch, had a narrow escape. For some reason the engine ceased to work. Gasoline had collected in the bottom of the boat, accidentally spilled or from leakage and in some way it became ignited. In a few seconds all were enveloped in flames and were compelled to jump into the Chesapeake. Fortunately they were in shoal water and managed to wade the boat around the beach to the mouth of the harbor where help was secured. No one was seriously injured but the boat is said to be badly burned.

Miss Helen Diggs of Baltimore, is visiting relatives in this part of the county.

The excursion to Norfolk last week proved to be a success. All claimed to have had a good time. Some allowed the boat to leave them and had to wait until the next day.

ORGANS SCHULZ

The name SCHULZ on an instrument is sufficient guarantee that it is of superior quality, and is now universally recognized as one of the best. M. Schulz Co. piano and organ factories are the largest and the company is one of the wealthiest and oldest in the Northwest. Their instruments attract world-wide attention after they successfully introduced a number of new and valuable improvements. The SCHULZ instruments are the best for this climate, as they have been constructed especially to resist the harmful effects of a damp climate. The best recommendation is the fact that several hundreds have been sold in this territory in the past six years, and such a standing advertisement for the company, that they will please all purchasers. Mr. Paul De B. Kops, the Southern representative, refers all prospective buyers to past customers and will furnish their names upon request. He has satisfied all and will guarantee to satisfy any purchaser in the future. Special inducements are being offered now in way of easy terms of purchase. One feature of M. Schulz Co. worthy of notice is the fact that they set the price on their instruments, and the representative or agent cannot change it. All customers pay one price. This is a point that will please many because they are sure of getting what they pay for, whether it is a $50. organ or a $100 organ or a $300 piano or a $500 piano. The company is now establishing agencies all through the South, and are offering lower prices and easier terms than regularly. Prospective buyers will do well to get information, even if they do not care to purchase yet. As stated before, all SCHULZ agents have the same prices, and if you will write to the factory representative, Mr. Paul De B. Kops, Urbanna, Va., for the information, he will tell you when you can see the new styles at the nearest point to your address.
